About this Course

Understanding how course climate impacts students and their learning is increasingly important to faculty and administrators alike across a wide range of educational contexts. Yet creating equitable learning environments that support all students' learning can be a challenge, especially when one considers that course climate consists of a variety of factors (e.g., student-student interactions, faculty-student interactions, course content and policies). Despite the fact that creating an inclusive teaching environment is beneficial for all students' learning, issues around inclusion and disinclusion are rarely discussed in practical

Participants in this course will consider multiple facets of inclusive teaching, including the creation of an equitable course climate, the design and implementation of accessible and inclusive classroom practices and assessments, and the selection and implementation of diverse course content. Participants will engage with key concepts in inclusive teaching and learn from experts in professional dental education who share their important research on student development, microaggressions, stereotype threat, and Universal Design for Learning. Participants will be equipped with tools to help them develop inclusive courses that support all learners.

What you'll learn

- Identify instructor assumptions about students and how these assumptions impact teaching practices in professional teaching institutions
- Develop an awareness of critical self-reflection and its value in teaching diverse learners
- Define the key components that impact inclusive teaching
- Apply inclusive teaching strategies in individual teaching contexts
- Identify resources needed to continually improve inclusive teaching practice

Syllabus

- Module 1: Establishing and Supporting an Inclusive Course Climate
- Module 2: Setting Explicit Expectations
- Module 3: Promoting Diversity and Inclusion Through Course Content
- Module 4: Designing All Course Elements for Accessibility
- Module 5: Cultivating Critical Self-Reflection

Report for FDP: INCLUSIVE TEACHING PRACTICES

The faculty professional development program titled "INCLUSIVE TEACHING PRACTICES" has been conducted from 05-09-2017 to 11-09-2017, in the premises of Index Institute of Dental Sciences, Indore. A total of 64 members from the faculty avidly participated in the program. The program started on the grand occasion of Teacher's Day, with the lighting of the lamp by the hands of Honorary Chairman, Index Group of Institutions, Indore – Shri Suresh Singh Bhadoriya, Chairperson for the session & Dean, IIDS – Dr. Milind B. Limaye, and our honorable speaker Dr. Mamta Singh, proceeded by a highly motivating inaugural address from Honorable Chairman, Index Group of Institutions, Indore – Shri Suresh Singh Bhadoriya.

During the 7-day program various points were discussed and highlighted expressing the importance of establishing a system aiming at supporting all students, from various walks of life, in an institutional classroom by our honorable speaker, Dr. Mamta Singh, a very eminent maxillofacial surgeon and a renowned academic figure in the current field of dentistry itself.

The key topics emphasizes during the program were –

- Establishing and Supporting an Inclusive Course Climate
- Setting Explicit Expectations
- Promoting Diversity and Inclusion Through Course Content
- Designing All Course Elements for Accessibility
- Cultivating Critical Self-Reflection

The participants learnt how to identify instructor assumptions about students and how these assumptions impact teaching practices, how to develop an awareness of critical self-reflection and its value in teaching diverse learners, then how to define the key components that impact inclusive classrooms, how to apply inclusive teaching strategies in individual teaching contexts, and how to identify resources needed to continually improve inclusive teaching practice.

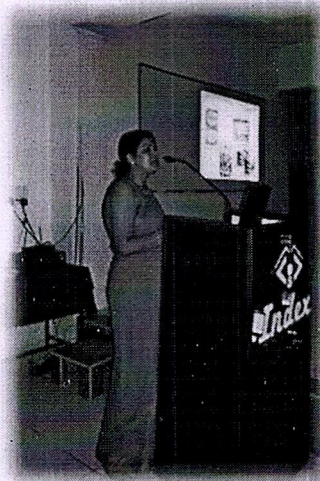

Various strategies were discussed during the entire course to inculcate and develop an all-inclusive study system for training the future professionals
