- Reduced chances of work failure
- Safe working environment to workers.

The speaker also discussed basics like that by performing regular and simple cleaning procedures will keep equipment in good condition so that lab runs smoothly and functionally. Equipment should be wiped down on a daily basis, it is also advisable to schedule deep cleaning of the equipment once a week.

Some training programmes were organised to enhance the Safe Equipment Management skills. The training programmes were:

Lab Training: Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) Edition

This basic-level course was designed to enhance laboratory scientists ability to identify how personal protective equipment (PPE) can help reduce the risk of exposure to hazardous materials, prevent transmission of infectious agents, and demonstrate how to don and doff PPE in the correct order to minimize contamination and potential exposures. This course empowers learners to apply knowledge and practice selecting the appropriate PPE and properly donning and doffing it in a virtual museum. It concludes with a final exam in a virtual laboratory.

Fundamentals of Working Safely in a Biological Safety Cabinet

This course enables learners to apply knowledge and practice setting up a biosafety cabinet (also known as a biological safety cabinet, or BSC) in a virtual laboratory. Step into a virtual laboratory and learn how to work safely in the first-ever Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's (CDC) virtual reality (VR) laboratory training course.

Introduction to Laboratory Risk Management (LRM)

This basic level eLearning course provides information on applying risk management principles and briefly describes related practices to emphasize the importance of risk management in laboratory settings.

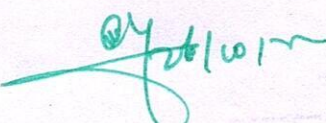

CLIA and Provider-Performed Microscopy (PPM) Procedures: An

Introduction

The goal of this eLearning course is to prepare physicians, midlevel providers, dentists, and others to meet requirements for PPM procedures under a CLIA certificate.

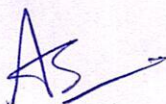

Introduction to the LIMS & Other Information Systems

Needle Stick Sharp Injuries (NSI) Protocol

TRAINING OBJECTIVE

- Awareness Regarding Primary Pathogens Transmitted Through NSI.
- Factors Contributing to Elevated Risk.
- Role Of Vaccination.
- Protocol To Be Followed After Any Needle Stick or Sharp Injuries.
- Virus- Specific Post Exposure Management.

CONCEPT

Needle Stick Sharp Injuries are major occupational hazard among health Care professionals. Since needles are commonly used during dental procedures, staff is susceptible to injuries inflicted by contaminated needles and sharps objects.

Serious blood borne pathogens, such as Human Immune Deficiency Virus (HIV) Hepatitis B (HBV) and Hepatitis C virus (HCV) can be transmitted through injury. The knowledge of management protocol helps in prevention and timely intervention.

NON TEACHING DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM: NEEDLE STICK INJURY

The Non-teaching staff professional development program titled “NEEDLE STICK INJURY” has been conducted successfully from 6th June to 9th June, 2017 for the staffs of Index Institute of Dental Sciences, Indore at IMCHRC lecture hall. A total of 64 members from the non-teaching staff participated in this program. The program highlighted and discussed various points expressing the importance of establishing a system aiming at supporting all the trainees, in an institutional classroom.

The key topics emphasised during the program were –

- Awareness regarding Primary Injury from needle
- Pathogens transmitted through NSI
- Factors Contributing to Elevated Risk of getting infected
- Role of Vaccination
- Protocol to be followed after any needle stick or sharp injuries
- Virus - Specific Post Exposure

Indore (M.P.)

The participants learnt about serious blood borne pathogens, such as human immune deficiency virus (HIV) Hepatitis B (HBV) and Hepatitis C virus (HCV) that can be transmitted through needle stick injury. The knowledge of management protocol helps in prevention and timely intervention.

Various strategies were discussed during the entire course to inculcate and develop concept of Needle stick injury for training the future professionals keeping the above stated points in purview. The participants were trained about the immediate action required following needle prick injury and the necessary vaccinations and medications required to be taken and subsequently follow up with requisite investigations and remedies. It was all very well-received from the entire audience.

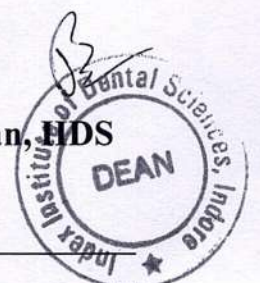

The program also outlined how proper knowledge of management of needle stick injuries can prevent the spread of various disease and its subsequent implications on the individuals and their families as well as the health care system. Thus, in all the whole program ended up with a huge success providing guidelines for the conduct of further programs in the same direction.

Report

NON TEACHING DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM: HAND HYGIENE

The Non-teaching staff professional development program titled “HAND HYGIENE” has been conducted successfully from 11th December to 14th December, 2017 at IMCHRC lecture hall for the staffs of Index Institute of Dental Sciences, Indore. A total of 78 members from the non-teaching staffs participated in this program. The program highlighted and discussed various points regarding the importance of establishing a system aiming at training about hand hygiene in hospitals to all the trainees for preventing hospital acquired infections (HAI).

The following key points were emphasised during the training program –

- Summary of healthcare associated infections epidemiology and the impact of hand hygiene and infection prevention and control.
- Major patterns of transmission of healthcare associated germs with a particular focus on hand transmission.
- Hand hygiene and prevention of health care-associated infections.
- WHO Guidelines on Hand Hygiene in Health Care and their implementation strategy and tools.

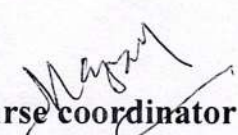

Registrar
Malwanchal University
Indore (M.P.)

- Why, when and how to perform hand hygiene in health care, including glove use
 - How to observe hand hygiene practices among health workers.

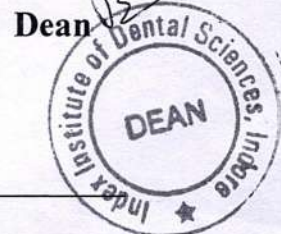

The participants learnt about serious hospital acquired infections that can be transmitted through improper techniques of hand hygiene. The knowledge of performing proper hand washing techniques protocol helps in prevention of various infections. Various strategies were discussed during the entire course to inculcate and develop concept of hand hygiene for training the future professionals keeping the above stated points in purview. It was all very well-received from the entire audience.

The participants also learnt about the efficacy of various handwashing sanitizer and soaps available in the market and in specific conditions. Thus, in all the whole program ended up with a huge success providing guidelines for the conduct of further programs in the same direction.
